ATLANTA, GA., OCTOBER 13, 1883.

INDICATIONS for South Atlantic states to-day, fair weather in northern portion, partly cloudy weather and local rains in southern portion, north to east winds, stationary barometer, stationary or falling temperature in northern portion, stationary or rising temperature.

The order will shortly be issued placing General Sherman on the retired list and placing General Sheridan in command of the army from and after the first of November next.

The October corn report indicates heavy losses of average from the frosts of the past month north and east, and from the protracted drought south. The wheat yield will also be considerably diminished.

The East river bridge, connecting New York and Brooklyn, has felt the tramp of a nation's feet. Since the fourth of July 38,854,000 persons have crossed it, so that within one year over 100,000,000 people will have been on the big bridge.

SECRETARY FOLGER declines to lend a favorable ear to the claims of Arkansas and Virginia, under the deposit act, for the distribution of the treasury surplus. He takes the ground that as long as the national debt is unpaid there is no surplus.

JIMMERSON the notorious Upson county counterfeiter, who claimed to have been kilted some months ago, has at last been brought to justice. He acknowledged his guilt before court in Macon yesterday, and has been consigned to the hospitalities of Albany penitentiary.

The political forces in Washington are working energetically against the civil service commission. It is recalled that President Grant, speaking of the failure of the original civil service scheme, said that the only man who ever secured office under its operation was in the penitentiary.

The annual convention of the Christian church, which has been in session in Atlanta, has been productive of much good to the church, and pleasant association on the part of the membership. The fact that the body will meet here again next year shows that it was favorably impressed with the city.

The hanging of Mills Craft, in Kentucky, brings to an end a most revolting chapter of crime. The story of the bloody Christmas night in the Gibbons home, with the children cowering under the outrages of their brutal murderers, surpasses all telling. Kentucky has secured a triumph of law in the infliction of the penalty.

The president has disapproved the sentence of dismissal passed upon Lieutenant Simpson, who had married his mistress. According to the army code, it is gentlemanly to be a libertine, but otherwise to repair the errors of a misspent life. Major Nickerson, who rejoiced in two wives at the same time, has thus far escaped the censure of the army martinet.

OUR COTTON AND WHEAT.

There will be no unmarketable surplus of products in the country this year. The world is to be clothed and fed, and the countries look to us for the raw material of clothing, and most of them for the food that they are not able to produce. A cotton crop below six million bales is also below the present consumption of American cotton. No matter how much was carried over of last year's crop the people of other lands will need every bale we can spare, and at the end of the year the market will be bare. There is nothing in the situation to justify lower prices for the staple, and if lower prices come they will be due to manipulation and not to any foreknowledge of supply and demand.

The wheat crop is also short, but with the surplus of last year's crop it is estimated that the exportable quantity will be about 187,000,000 bushels. The Vienna congress estimates the shortage in eighteen countries at 100,000,000 bushels. We have that quantity to spare, and if the foreign demand holds up to the Vienna estimate the prices of wheat will be strong and possibly higher. If the old world takes from us all the cotton and wheat we can spare, the exports of the year will round out into large figures, and moderate gold imports will be inevitable. The deficiencies in the old world in the respect of both cotton and wheat cannot well be filled in any other country than this, and the prospect therefore is that we will sell more than we buy, and that a year of prosperity is ahead of us.

BUSY EDITORS.

The conductors of the esteemed Cincinnati Commercial Gazette are displaying great versatility in predicting the probable effect of the results in Ohio on the future of the democratic party. They display no great amiability of disposition, but while they are feeling around in the dark for something substantial to hold to, or to bark their shins against, they address the public in a strain which is at once pleasant and confidential. But they are confused. A paragraph begun by Editor Halstead is completed by Deacon Smith and polished off by Editor Plympton, who is not disposed to conceal the fact that he possesses the literary faculty.

The outlook, so far as these able journalists are concerned, affords but one element of consolation, and that is a vague hope that the enthusiastic democrats may do some development, or commit some blunder which will have the effect of turning the state over to the republicans at the election.

The prospect, vague and improbable as it is, gives great satisfaction to the worthy editors of the Commercial Gazette, and they are smacking their lips over it with a gusto, which shows that they really have nothing else to turn to. "Just let them tackle the wool duty once more," exclaims Editor Halstead. "Let them repeal the Scott law if they dare," remarks Deacon Smith, with a threatening gesture, as he wipes the beer from his beard. "We shall see how their calculations come out," cries Mr. Plympton, who is not a mathematician.

The editors of our esteemed contemporary make other remarks of a vaguely amusing nature, but they draw all their consolation from the hope that the democrats will not hesitate to wreck the state and destroy the country by the time the next election occurs. Deacon Smith, who is a close reader of the New York Tribune, declares, with some display of emotion, that "Hoadly is Tilden's candidate, and that signifies a great deal." He further says that "Governor Cleveland, Governor Hendricks, Governor Butler, Governor Parker, Senator McDonald and the rest will have to stand back." To this threatening phase of the situation, Editor Plympton adds the following: "Tilden has allowed the old ticket to be talked about, and has played it delicately, but the man he has in view for the presidency is not himself, but George Hoadly, and he is an Ohio man. We invite the democratic press to partake of this dish of gruel."

No one but a western literary man, a stranger to the richest political feasts, would mistake gumbo for gruel; but the mistake is a natural one, and we will not dwell upon it. It is a great compliment to the skill and efficiency for his efforts to receive the off-hand recognition of his political enemies—a fitting tribute to the power and influence of his intellectual machinery.

The esteemed Commercial pays no direct tribute to Governor Hoadly, but this is not to be expected; nor, indeed, is it necessary. The man who, while suffering from an illness which compels him to leave the campaign in other hands, can win a democratic victory in a republican stronghold, needs no tribute from his opponents. If circumstances and Mr. Tilden decide that Governor Hoadly will make an available candidate for president, he will be elected and Ohio will be distinguished as the mother of a democratic president. Our esteemed contemporary should think of these things.

But the fact to which we desire to call attention is the superserviceable attitude of the republican press. They manifest a disposition to take entire charge of the democratic party, and for months past they have been engaged in nominating democratic candidates for all the more important offices. Having settled that Mr. Randall is to be the speaker of the democratic house, they are now turning their attention to the presidency. If they were all as amiable as the Commercial Gazette and inclined to nominate as available a candidate as Governor Hoadly will undoubtedly be, they would finally succeed in disarming our suspicions.

EX-GOVERNOR CONLEY'S INDICTMENT. The announcement that the jury of the federal court has indicted ex-Governor Conley for embezzlement will be received with surprise by our people.

The jury that found the indictment is a good one, and is in the main made up of careful men. Under the expert showing made before them they doubtless could do no less than indict. But the people of Georgia, who have known Governor Conley all his life, will be slow to believe that he has been dishonest and that one dollar of the government's money found its way illegitimately into his pocket. We believe that Governor Conley will make a case that will fully and entirely wipe away the stain that this indictment puts on his heretofore unsullied name.

GARFIELD AND MAHONE. D. H. Chamberlain, who was conspicuous in South Carolina affairs during the carpet-bag era, has been airing his familiarity with Garfield by printing some letters written by the latter. Chamberlain, it seems, after his South Carolina experiences, became curiously solicitous in regard to honest government in the south. His attitude naturally led him to oppose the pretensions of Mahone in Virginia, and it was in regard to this unscrupulous politician that he opened a correspondence with Garfield, who was then a candidate.

The letters written by Garfield, judged by the light of subsequent events, are very curious documents. He agreed thoroughly with everything that Chamberlain said in regard to Mahone, and declared that it would be to the interest of the republican party to repudiate him. He said, moreover, that Mahone would not find the Garfield administration a sympathetic one, and Chamberlain had every reason to believe that one of the first acts of Mr. Garfield as president would be to repudiate the Virginia demagogue.

In spite of all this, however, when the Garfield administration came into power, Mahone was received with open arms, and was as powerful as he could hope to be. No doubt Mr. Garfield meant every word he said when he wrote his letter to Chamberlain, but when he became president he found the republican party, owing to the peculiar condition of things in the senate, practically in Mahone's power. Nothing could be done without the consent of the cunning little demagogue. Mr. Garfield was as powerless as the rest of the republican party—and perhaps, at bottom, as earnestly in sympathy with him. This, as well as other things, shows that the rascals should be turned out.

UNDER date of August, October 10th, Colonel Charles C. Jones, Jr., writes as follows: "I have just read, in the CONSTITUTION of yesterday, your kind notice of my forthcoming history of Georgia. You speak of it, however, as consisting of only one volume. There are two octavo volumes, of about 500 pages each, now in electrotype plates. They will be published by the middle of November next. The first covers the aboriginal and colonial epochs; while the second relates to the revolutionary epoch concluding with the inauguration of Lyman Hall as governor. Nine full page illustrations accompany these volumes. In their preparation I have exhausted every available source of information."

The "independent" republicans of Massachusetts are the wildest harpies in all North America. They are pretending that Butler has driven them back to the support of the machine. This is calculated to make even the machine laugh.

The festive style in which the republican telegraphers of Ohio have seen fit to forward election returns is the subject of general remark. The truth is, in these days of an enlightened public press, nothing escapes remark.

If all the escaped Connecticut murderers turn up in time to vote the republican ticket next year, there will be some doubt as to the result.

The experience that Foraker acquired during Governor Hoadly's recent illness would serve him well in the lecture field.

Hoadly and Cleveland doesn't sound bad when you get used to it. No doubt it is one of Mr. Tilden's combinations.

BUTLER and the republican party of Massachusetts are well met. Between the two, we are largely in favor of Butler.

DEER doesn't seem to muddle the brains of the average Ohio voter. He knows when to turn the rascals out.

AFTER next year the republican party will have an opportunity to join an expedition to the north pole.

MR. TILDEN will have plenty of time to go yachting before the next democratic convention meets.

SENATOR PARKS CONVALESCENT. Much anxiety concerning the health of Senator Parks has been felt in Atlanta for the past few days. During the late session of the legislature the senator had made hosts of friends here, both in his public and private character. It was with some concern, then, that his condition was watched. In answer to a telegram yesterday the following gratifying news of convalescence was received: "Lawson Parks is now on his feet and is improving slowly, but he is not able to leave his bed yet."

POSTMASTER SMYTH.

Appointed to Handle Uncle Sam's Mails at the Post Office of Atlanta.

The agency is over and Atlanta has been vouchsafed a postmaster at the hands of our recuperated president. Early last night the associated press wire from the following:

WASHINGTON, October 11.—Major W. H. Smyth has been appointed postmaster at Atlanta, Georgia, vice Benjamin Conley, suspended. Major Smyth was born in the city of Georgia during the two terms of President Grant, and has been a highly respected citizen of Atlanta for about twenty years.

The above news will be accepted this morning with complacency by the people of Atlanta. Major Smyth is well known to all the people and enjoys the respect and confidence of all classes of our citizens. During his long residence in Atlanta and his high years' administration of the United States mail service he has proven himself a man of thoroughly correct business habits, of irreproachable morals and of high integrity. No one who knows him can say anything to his disparagement as a man and official. His clear brain and rare administrative abilities adapt him admirably for the office of postmaster, and our citizens are to be congratulated upon this excellent conclusion of the debate over the question of his appointment.

Major Smyth could not be seen last night, but he will undoubtedly make his bond and take charge of the office during the next fortnight.

PU-SUING PITCHFORD.

The Grand Jury to Investigate Charges Against One of the Justices.

The regularly elected justice of the peace in the 12th district, George A. Mitchell, of Fulton county, embracing the territory of north Atlanta, is Daniel Pitchford. For some time past there have been numerous complaints lodged in the office of the solicitor general about the manner in which Justice Pitchford was dealing out law and transacting the business of his office.

The complaints have at length grown so numerous and have come backed by such proofs as to cause his actions to be seriously considered. It is stated that the grand jury will take the matter in hand and call upon Squire Pitchford to come before them and answer the charges preferred against him. They are not permitted by the law to make special presentments in cases of misdemeanor or malfeasance in office by magistrates, but they can investigate charges, hear the evidence, and where prosecutors appear return indictments against the offenders.

The case for Squire Pitchford, it is charged that he has been guilty of extorting illegal and excessive fees from parties in his court; that he has sold the office in the most disgraceful manner, and that he has been guilty of illegal settlements and disbursements upon payment of fees. These are all serious charges, and public justice, and unless the squire can show to the grand jury that these charges are untrue, he will find himself involved in a deal of trouble.

The case against the hands of the solicitor general and at a convenient time will be presented to the grand jury for their action.

CONLEY IN COURT.

HE IS JOINTLY INDICTED WITH JOE NALL.

The Facts Which Induced the Grand Jury to Find a True Bill—The Evidence Fully Developed—A Demand for a Speedy Trial—Bailed Fixed at a Low Figure.

"Constitution brooded over the scene," when it was announced in the government place yesterday that the United States grand jury had returned a true bill of indictment against Benjamin Conley and Joel S. Nall for embezzlement. Governor Conley as postmaster and Mr. Nall as assistant postmaster were joined in the same bill and jointly charged with the same offenses. Both were but recently removed from office, and their cases have since been watched by the public with deepest interest.

When the Constitution yesterday foreclosed the indictment of Governor Conley the public were ready to denounce the possibility of such an event. They expected, as a matter of course, that Nall would be indicted and brought to trial for the embezzlement of the $5,000 of which amount he was short when checked up by the inspector. But the people have scouted the idea that Governor Conley's fair name and established character could be smeared or shaken by any developments that could ensue from the financial imbrigo connected with the office. It was a very startling and painful shock, therefore, that followed the public announcement that the grand jury, after a careful examination of the evidence submitted by the government, had decided upon their oath to indict Governor Conley with Nall in the criminal prosecution made necessary by the facts.

FINDING THE INDICTMENT. The grand jury began the consideration of the case on Thursday, and Inspector Sharp was the only witness who was before them. He was fully examined as to the investigations he had made and the facts that had been ascertained thereby. He presented all the documentary evidence in his possession which tended to throw light upon the management of the financial affairs of the office. These were sufficient to convince the grand jurors of their duty in the premises, and the indictment was agreed upon Thursday evening. The formal presentation of the bill was deferred until yesterday morning, when it was delivered in open court.

ASKING BAIL AND TRIAL. When it became known that the indictment had been found, word was at once conveyed to Governor Conley, who was at the office of his son, John L. Conley, on Marietta street. Both gentlemen at once repaired to the court room and Mr. John L. Conley arose, interrupting a case on trial, and addressed Judge McCall. He said he had learned that an indictment had been found against his father for the embezzlement of $5,000 of postal funds. His father was present in court and desired that he should be called to the stand. Judge McCall said he would consider the matter and when the district attorney would present his case. He intimated that the amount would be $2,000.

Mr. John L. Conley then sought District Attorney Speer and desired to know whether his father might have a trial. He said that he desired a speedy hearing of the case. District Attorney Speer replied that he could not do so until the trial of the case had been heard by Chief Inspector Sharp, in Washington. He intimated that he would use his best efforts to procure a trial of the case during the present term of the court.

THE FORMAL CHARGES contained in the bill of indictment constitute three counts. The document is quite a lengthy one and may be fairly summarized as follows:

The first count charges the defendants that, having been postmaster and assistant postmaster at Atlanta and having custody of public money to the amount of $5,022.57, they unlawfully failed to deposit the same in the treasury at New York, as was required of them by law; said failure constituting a misdemeanor under the statutes of the United States.

The second count charges them with conspiring together to withhold the postal revenues of the United States and to embezzle the same to the amount of $5,022.57.

The third count charges that, being officers and agents of the government and having custody of large amounts of public money, they unlawfully failed to render true and accurate accounts of the same as required by law.

The foreman of the grand jury is Mr. John C. Kirkpatrick, of this city, a gentleman of integrity and fine skill as a business man and accountant. The prosecutor marked on the bill is A. J. Sharp, the chief inspector of the postoffice department. It was ascertained that the action of the grand jury was unanimous in favor of the finding of the bill as above outlined.

SOME OF THE EVIDENCE. It is, of course, impossible to present the full outlines of the testimony upon which the grand jury based its finding, but some of the most interesting and important facts can be stated in isolated shape. The greater portion of the testimony is newly discovered since the warrant was taken out for Nall, or, it is stated, Governor Conley would have been arrested and made to enter into bail, as was Nall.

In addition to the incidents already detailed in several articles published in THE CONSTITUTION since the blowing of the scandal, the following are given as facts in the case.

CASHING IN TO CHECK OUT. It is said that after Governor Conley found his cash accounts short he began to check them up from fear of discovery. One of his methods of doing this was, at the end of each quarter, to bank a personal note for a large amount, and with the proceeds make good his accounts. Having done this he would wait until the next day, when he would call on the local office, where he would draw his check upon these funds to meet his note. By this process, frequently repeated, he was enabled to throw off all suspicion and avoid inquiry into the state of his finances as postmaster. These papers were executed for large amounts and were without any handwriting and could not be denied. They are taken as proof that Governor Conley knowingly engaged in falsifying the postal accounts and violated the postal law of the postoffice.

ANOTHER INSURANCE. Another insurance cited was a balance due the government amounting to about $1,900. This should have been carried forward on the books and been duly accounted for, but instead it was left at the foot of the page, where it was noted, and the next day, when the grand jury was present, it was a glaring piece of falsification of the books, and the experts who were the grand jury had been deceived by the most palpable and indubitable evidence of fraudulent practice.

MULTIPLYING THE BOOKS. It is further stated that the cash book, or book of entries, covering the checks made upon the postal funds by Governor Conley, were placed in his custody by the inspector after the removal of Nall and he was told to keep them safely until they were needed. Soon after Governor Conley was removed and now it is claimed that while the book was in his possession a number of his pages were torn or cut out and the balance was made to show a different result. The case of the finding of $300 on Inspector Sharp while he was counting the cash of the office was fully stated in THE CONSTITUTION of yesterday.

NO GIVE AWAY GAME. The district attorney, Hon. Emory Speer, was asked whether there was any proposition for Nall to become a government witness and escape prosecution. He replied that there was nothing of the sort contemplated so far as the counsel for the government was concerned. From other sources it was pretty definitely ascertained that there would be no give away testimony in the affair, but the prosecution would be conducted squarely by the usual form and vigor, as against both the defendants.

MUCH PUBLIC SYMPATHY. Was freely expressed for Governor Conley, and it is fair to him to say that the fact that we know believe he is guilty of any criminality in this affair. They expect him to fully explain the evidence against him and vindicate himself from the imputations put upon his character so signally by this indictment.

In conversation last evening Mr. John L. Conley stated that he would this morning again apply to Judge McCall to order the trial of the case against his father set down for a day certain during the present term.

"You feel sure of the result?" "Certainly. We do not intend to let these—d—d sounders make official capital out of this case, and putting my father before the public as an embezzler of public money. We want a speedy trial and we are going to have it."

General Gartrell has been retained for the defense of Governor Conley. He will probably have other able counsel associated with him when the case comes to trial.

important financial transactions are about to be consummated relative to the Mobile Grand Trunk railroad, with a view to push the road through in a short time.

THE CENTRAL OF GEORGIA.

President Raul's annual report at the Meeting of the Board of Directors.

President Raul's annual report was read at the meeting of the board of directors held on Thursday. We quote from it:

The reason from the operations of your road and other property, during the past year, have been as follows:

EARNINGS.
Central railroad—$1,984,677.37
Savannah Division—573,611.83
Atlantic Division—1,081,350.54
Columbus and West—176,379.21
Montgomery and Eu—386,809.07
Atlantic Division—24,242.35
Ocean Steamship Co—731,414.82
Central Railroad Bank—119,356.64
Total from all sources—$4,977,857.03

EXPENSES.
Savannah Division—$1,161,673.48
Atlantic Division—472,793.23
Southwestern Railroad—687,046.21
Columbus and West—115,409.72
Montgomery and Eu—192,998.71
Atlantic Division—17,911.39
Ocean Steamship Co—673,407.39
Central Railroad Bank—29,718.10
Total expenses all kinds—$2,950,115.10

Total net earnings—$2,027,741.93

DISPOSED OF AS FOLLOWS:
Interest on Bonds—$51,759.00
Rentals on Roads—49,722.50
Interest on Current Notes—276,000.00
Sinking Funds—115,000.00
Dividends—600,000.00
Total paid out on account of fixed charges and dividends—$1,392,512.50

Surplus for the year—$635,229.43

It will be seen from the above figures that our earnings from all sources, have been sufficient to meet fixed charges, and pay to our stockholders a dividend of 3 per cent and yet leave a surplus of $635,229.43. While this is a very small balance to be reserved from so large a business, your board, in view of the good financial condition of your company, and the excellent business it was enjoying at the time of the declaration of the last dividend, did not deem it necessary to increase the surplus at the expense of a reduction of the dividend. It is, however, recognizing their claims to all the net proceeds from their property that can prudently be paid, with due regard to the financial safety of the company. While the legal interest of the state is 7 per cent, and the returns from most investments usually less, a dividend of 3 per cent may be looked upon as large, and the tendency of the law is towards limitations of profits on railroad property. It is, however, important that the sources from which these profits are drawn should be well understood.

So far from earning excessive profits, the contrary has been the case, for those of your roads lying within the limits of the state of Georgia, and under the jurisdiction of its railroad laws, have not been able to earn a legal interest upon their capital. The Central and Southwestern railroads, moving a much larger volume of business than the year previous, yield only about 4 per cent upon their combined capital stock after paying the interest on their fixed obligations, while those obligations and the capital stock of the two companies, taken together, reach the best business sections of the country. These passing, through territory thinly settled or less developed, and dependent upon a lighter traffic, fall still further short of remunerating their owners.

By reference to the statements above given, it will be seen that the money we have received from your Georgia roads has been chiefly derived from the profits on property operated outside of the state of Georgia, which has been produced by the foresight and sagacity of a former management, in part by the application of the earnings of the road during past years, to its present purpose, and in part by the productiveness of the purchased property.

That any system of limitations of profits is unsound in policy and often oppressive to those against whom it is directed, few will question; and while it may be hopeless to expect, it is certainly not unreasonable to claim, that each separate road should be dealt with by the law upon its own merits, and permitted every reasonable latitude to increase its earnings commensurate with its usefulness to the public and its cost to its owners.

SOMETHING EVERY LADY OUGHT TO KNOW.

There exists a means of securing a soft and brilliant complexion, no matter how poor it may naturally be. Hagan's Magnolia Balm is a delicate and harmless article, which instantly removes freckles, tan, redness, roughness, eruptions, vulgar flushings, etc., etc. So delicate and natural are its effects that its use is not suspected by anybody.

No lady has the right to present a disfigured face in society when the Magnolia Balm is sold by all druggists for 75 cents.

DIAMOND MERCHANTS

MANUFACTURING JEWELERS.

WE offer for sale the largest and richest collection of Diamonds ever shown in a Southern State. These are offered at prices that simply defy competition!

It has been the custom with some dealers to charge such a margin on the few diamonds they sell as will enable them to carry on their whole business at a profit.

Our large and unprecedented sales of diamonds, induced in the first place by our short margins, have enabled us to reduce our prices until we are below the lowest down here, and guarantee to duplicate the prices of any New York merchant.

Our Mr. Freeman has just returned from the Northern, Eastern and Western Markets, where he executed several important commissions for diamond buyers that carried him to the best diamond merchants of the country, and made many purchases for our stock.

WE INVITE INSPECTION

Our Daily Bread.
Heavy and cold bread or biscuit has a vast influence through the digestive organs upon the majority of health we enjoy. How important to our present and future usefulness the blessing of good health and a sound constitution are, we can only realize when we have lost them and when it is too late to repair the damage. And yet, notwithstanding these facts, thousands of persons in this city daily jeopardize not only their health but their lives, and the health and lives of others.
This is an age of adulterations, and the people should be very careful of what they eat and drink. Dohme & Duffy, have been preaching upon this subject for years. We ask the people of Atlanta to call at Dohme & Duffy's, where the people of Atlanta will tell you that Dohme & Duffy will not misrepresent their goods to make a sale, and if their goods should not prove to be what they say they are your money will be refunded on application for the same.
